Just ahead - Three national monument units, no waiting...

by Fossil Beds

The fossil beds are almost like time the oldest of the mountains. Fossil beds are ancient sea animals. Fossils and helped early species land and sea. A distinct and painted in a piece. Fossil beds

They display changes in landscape, ecosystems and climate that took place during this fascinating time in the Earth's geologic history.

As you stand back and examine the rock, imagine the vast volcanic fields and meadows that pushed through this was once a subtropical paradise that full of lush plants and a wide variety of animals, much like Costa Rica or Veracruz, Mexico today. Underneath these rolling and rugged hills of Eastern Oregon, evidence of ancient history lies within.

The scientific history and connections to science today are just some of the reasons to visit the fossil beds. Take a moment to talk with the scientists and rangers who work at the monument. Their expertise and knowledge can add a whole new layer of wonder to your experience.

The season of giving has arrived! Stuff those stockings with all things Oregon.
